

Chips With Everything

- Excuse me we'd like a table for two please

Well I don't know we're very busy at lunch time.

- Is this table free?

Well yes.

- Could we have a menu please? We're in a hurry.

Yes,sir. Here you are.

- Ah, soup! What would you like darling?
They've got tomato or minestrone.

* Mmmm. I'd like the tomato soup.
What about the main course?

- I'd like the steak. And you?

* Yes, the steak for me too and a salad not chips.

- Excuse me.

Yes, sir.

- We'd like two tomato soups please.

Tomato soups off the menu. We haven't got any.

* Could we have two minestrone soups then?

Minestrone off too.

* What have you got?

We've got soup of the day.

* What is it?

Potato.

* All right – two potato soups then.

Two potato soups. Anything else?

- Yes, we'd like two steaks please.
One rare and one well-done.

Steaks off. We haven't got any.

- All right, could we have two chicken, please?

CHIPS WITH EVERYTHING

Chickens off

- I see. Have you got any fish?

Uh-ha.

- What have you got?

Egg and chips. Hot dog and chips. Sausage and chips.

Hamburger and chips. Spaghetti ...

- and chips

Bolognaise

Spaghetti bolognese.

*All right – two spaghetti bolognese then.
And a salad salad.

A salad?

* Yes I'd like a salad.

You wouldn't.

* I would.

- She would. What's wrong with that?

* You're right. I wouldn't.

- Your fingers in my soup.

It's alright, sir. It isn't hot.

* That's it. Come on, Martin.

Hey! What about your spaghetti?
Oh, probably not hungry.